A variety of quaternary ammonium compounds are known in the art to be muscarinic receptor antagonists, either peripherally selective or centrally selective. In some cases, such as in the art as exemplified by U.S. Pat. Nos. 4,182,764, 4,166,895, and 4,150,070, it has been found that such compounds will exhibit anticholinergic side effects such as dry mouth, nose, and eyes, constipation, and heart arrhythmias. Thus, it would be of value to provide muscarinic receptor antagonists which do not cause these side effects. Single parent living can be stressful, and it's hard to have a new place to live without your child. But what if you had the option to take your kids along with you? That's what the residents of the Exposition Park Apartment building in St. Louis are going to get! A single mother named Rebecca is one of the lucky ones who has the opportunity to be able to move to a new city with her kids. The new building, formerly an office building, is set to be turned into a complex of eight brand new apartment units. The project, called Exposition Park Apartments, will be built on an almost half acre lot. The building is slated to begin construction in January 2016 and is set to open in fall of 2017. The apartment building will offer a few luxury amenities and features in addition to the single mother apartments. The amenities will include community space, such as a basketball court and a small park, a gym, an exterior swimming pool, and laundry facilities for residents. The building is also set to include on-site management and security services. The apartments are scheduled to begin renting in late 2017. The apartments are currently being sold on a pre-lease basis and there are still a few of the units left. If you want to become one of the lucky residents of this affordable apartment building, you can contact the management company for more information.
