See the Elden Ring synopsis below!

Alice Evans (Alice), a manlier-than-the-ordinary young schoolgirl, goes to the Hollereth Castle with her friend Linda. They both meet the charming guy, Adam; he teaches Alice to play the piano and they have a wonderful time. Alice falls deeply in love with Adam, but his duties to the Hollereth Castle cause them to part. Afterward, Alice discovers a flat in Yaida, and moves in with her best friend Britta, whose family owns a castle. Britta's father is so worried that their family's castle will be reduced to ashes, that he moves the castle out of town.

Alice gets older and her grades at school gradually fall. Britta tells Alice that her existence is a misunderstanding, and tries to talk her out of solitude. Her father, who is a high-ranking priest,

"The characters were amazing. The graphics were spectacular. The music was relaxing. The plot was amazing. And the story was deep" IGN "When you see what skills your character can learn and upgrade, not only it looks very good, but when you are fighting with monsters, you feel the weight of the characters and your character looks brilliant." *The information on this site reflects the typical minimum values for the normal version of the game.  Q: ASP.NET Identity 2.1 How to Inject a DataStore into a custom Identity RoleProvider I am trying to modify my customized roleProvider in Identity 2.1, so I can give a custom model to the roleDetails property, to get additional information, so I can compare the role claim to the custom role object, instead of the default model "IdentityUserRole". I have copied my custom identity roleProvider over and modified some properties, since my current implementation uses an old version of code. public class MyCustomRoleProvider : RoleProvider { private readonly IMyRoleDetailsRepository _repository; public MyCustomRoleProvider(IRoleDetailsRepository repository) { _repository = repository; } public override string[] GetRolesForUser(string userName) { var roles = base.GetRolesForUser(userName); var roleDetails = _repository.GetRoleDetails(userName); if (roleDetails != null) { return GetRoleNamesByProfile(roleDetails.ProfileId, userName); } return roles; } public override string GetUserNameForUser(ApplicationUser user) { // TODO: Replace the following line with a call to // the store this user is in. return user.UserName; } public override bool IsUserInRole(string userName, string roleName) { // TODO: Replace the following line with a call to // the store this user is in. return false released a new report on Friday (May 14) that shows Samsung has overtaken Apple as the world's No. 1 smartphone vendor and the largest global cell phone manufacturer, growing its market share to 23.1% in Q1 FY2016. Samsung has been steadily increasing its smartphone portfolio throughout 2016 and has seen strong growth with each new release. Samsung is the world's third-largest smartphone vendor behind No. 1 Apple and No. 2 Huawei. The biggest smartphone manufacturer in the world isn't the US major.

It's Samsung. The South Korean firm grew its market share to 23% globally in the first quarter of 2016, according to new research from business research firm Canalys. This marks Samsung's first victory over Apple in the smartphone stakes for two consecutive quarters since 2012. Samsung's growth was driven by the firm's Galaxy S7 and S7 Edge smartphone introductions, which it took global market share from Huawei. It is Samsung's strongest quarter in just the last two years. Samsung also debuted its new Galaxy Note 7 to positive reviews, but slashed the prices on its older models in order to try to raise sales. Apple still holds the No. 1 spot but is decreasing
