Hormones and Contraception is a quiz for leisure and education. It was developed to be a simple and educational tool that will allow you to learn more about Hormones, Reproductive cycle and Contraception. You can choose between three levels of difficulty. Touch At Will. A laptop program written in Java that allows you to perform many different tasks. This program has been conceived so that teachers, parents and students can use it during lessons. It has been designed so that it can be used anytime and anywhere. There are no programs to download, no registration procedure and no password to remember. It has a simple interface with a viewing screen, to let you watch the activities that are being performed and write notes. It also allows you to run drawings, graphs, reports and many other activities on the screen. This program is just a touch device and does not require batteries. Because it is just a touch screen, it can be used anywhere and with a touch you can perform all your activities. And you don't have to waste paper and pen. You can do all your activities with the screen. All that remains is to provide it with batteries and it will be ready to use.

Screenshots: A personal signature software written in Java that can be used to write your signature and also to highlight text. This application is designed to be simple and clear. The user interface can be used with a standard mouse and the signature should be a vector graphics. It allows you to quickly write with all your abilities without compromising legibility. It is especially useful for signing on the Web, because you can write in landscape mode. One of the main functions is to allow you to highlight text. This text can be a text written by the user or that appears on the Web page. The application allows you to highlight text of unlimited size, so that the content will not appear in white on the screen, but will appear in the background of the page. A Java Desktop Application to build 3D models of straight and round forms with enough realism to resemble a block of wood, or a piece of leather furniture. The program is written in Java and uses OpenGL to build the 3D model. The scene is dynamic, meaning that the 3D model, is modified each time you refresh the scene. The user can choose the sizes of the forms and the colors of the wood or leather, so it will be possible to build different pieces of furniture. This application is b7e8fdf5c8

The thyroid gland produces three types of hormones: Triiodothyronine (T3) Thyroxine (T4) Thyrotropin (TSH) The level of these hormones is regulated by the hypothalamus and pituitary gland through a feedback mechanism. The following hormones are produced and secreted by the thyroid gland (in descending order of synthesis): Triiodothyronine Thyroxine Thyrotropin The thyroid gland begins to make these hormones during fetal development. T3 begins to be made at the end of the third month of gestation and T4 at the end of the fourth month of gestation. Both T4 and T3 are molecules that circulate freely in the blood. T3 has a higher affinity for binding to thyroid hormone receptors than T4. Therefore, T3 is the most active hormone of the three. Thyroid hormone receptors, which are found in most cells of the body, are proteins that control the rate of growth, development, and cellular function. T4 is the precursor to T3 and is converted to T3 by a deiodinase enzyme. When T4 is converted to T3, a molecule with a higher affinity for binding to thyroid hormone receptors is created. TSH, which is normally produced by the pituitary gland, is also a hormone that circulates in the blood and brain. The peripheral part of the pituitary gland, also called the anterior lobe, produces TSH. TSH levels rise and fall during the day, following the daily pattern of eating, exposure to light, and the circadian rhythm. The main function of the anterior pituitary gland is to make and secrete growth hormone (which triggers the development of more muscle, bone, and tissue) and thyroid-stimulating hormone (which helps to regulate metabolism)
