UFS Explorer Pro Recovery V7 19.6 Portable Serial Key keygen.Q: Why does adding a specific webpage in the manifest tag cause random errors? I'm developing for the Windows Phone 7 with the Windows Phone SDK 7. I have a basic ListBox that retrieves all the apps in the store and retrieves their names, app names, and min and max dimensions. It works fine, however when I add an HTML WebBrowser control to the Application object like so; ... HTMLPageSettings htmlPageSettings = new HTMLPageSettings(); htmlPageSettings.ApplicationLink = ""; htmlPageSettings.LoadingPage = "ystore/apps/detailspage.htm#carousel"; htmlPageSettings.WebBrowserHeight = 600; htmlPageSettings.WebBrowserWidth = 800; application.Settings = htmlPageSettings; ... I get random exceptions, with no messages, and the program stops executing. I've been tearing my hair out over this. Does anyone know what is going on? A: There are actually two similar problems: In the first case, you're using the ApplicationLink and a static web link to download data to a page. I don't think you need both. If you want to display data on the application screen then it's easier to load data at app start, like you've done. The second case is that when running in the emulator, you don't need a reference to the phone's web browser. In your case, there are no exceptions (
