To investigate the expression of miR-33a and c-Met in melanoma cell lines and primary melanoma tissue, and explore their relationship. The expression of miR-33a in 2 melanoma cell lines, WM1552C and G361, was analyzed by PCR. The expression of c-Met protein in the 2 melanoma cell lines was detected by Western blotting. The expression of miR-33a and c-Met in 29 paraffin-embedded melanoma tissue samples and 11 primary cell culture specimens were detected by in situ hybridization. The miR-33a level was significantly lower in G361 and WM1552C cell lines than in the normal human melanocyte cell line, HEMA-LP (P0.05). In melanoma tissue, the expression of miR-33a was positively related to the expression of c-Met (P0.05). However, c-Met protein expression was significantly higher in the melanoma tissues with lymph node metastasis than in those without. The expression of miR-33a and c-Met in melanoma cell lines and primary melanoma tissue was significantly different. MiR-33a may be a tumor suppressor in melanoma, and c-Met may be an oncogene in melanoma. MiR-33a may be involved in the regulation of the expression of c-Met in melanoma. c-Met protein may be a new target of miR-33a in melanoma.Tailoring the β -Diketiminat Ligand Environment: An Investigation of the Structural, Coordination and Cat
