FreeA case of IgG4-related disease mimicking metastatic cancer in the lung. IgG4-related disease is a recently recognised non-Hodgkin lymphoproliferative disorder (NHL) that can mimic a range of inflammatory conditions. Tissue diagnosis of IgG4-related disease is difficult because of its non-specific clinical presentation, lack of specific histological markers and its rarity. We report a case of IgG4-related disease of the lung presenting as a solitary nodule with features of metastasis on computed tomography and positron-emission tomography computed tomography. We show that this rare disease may be indistinguishable from malignant disease on imaging and that awareness of IgG4-related disease can avoid unnecessary invasive procedures.1. Autodesk.Levi's, the denim and footwear giant, has admitted it may be subject to criminal conduct charges after it failed to disclose how the company's trousers become so muddied from use. At a hearing of the US financial services committee, Levi Strauss & Co (LS) Chief Financial Officer Michael T Kelly confirmed that the company may be subject to a "negligence charge", since it failed to disclose the formation of the new material, known as de-staining agent, on the financial statements for the 2015 fiscal year. The revelations were first raised by Levi Strauss and Co's former chief executive, Joseph E B Harris, in a successful lawsuit against the company, which was resolved in 2012. The former executive sued the company for not disclosing 6d1f23a050
