The manufacturing of the active matrix flat panel display, such as an LCD, is a complex, multistep process. Various steps of this process including a deposition of thin film transistors (TFT), the processing of the resultant TFT array, and the processing of the display materials are each time performed. In addition, the photolithographic patterning and etching steps remain very critical to the manufacturing of the panels and devices. In the manufacture of an LCD, a TFT array is first patterned. Thereafter, the TFT substrate is aligned to
